PART 8

REMUNERATION AND COSTS

Interpretation of this Part

48. In this Part—

“costs” includes fees for any legal business done by a legal practitioner;

“legal practitioner” includes the executors, administrators and assignees of a legal practitioner;

“person chargeable” in relation to a legal practitioner’s bill of costs includes any person who has paid or is liable to pay the bill either to the legal practitioner or to any other person chargeable with the bill;

“taxing officer” means in relation to the Court or any Court of Record, the Registrar of that Court.

Payments in advance and accountability

49. (1) A legal practitioner who receives any money in advance from or on behalf of a client to cover prospective costs, other than a retainer, or as security for future costs shall, on the written demand of the client made at any time after the expiration of 3 months from the receipt of the money or at any subsequent time during any period which is at least 3 months from the date of the last demand, deliver to the client a statement in writing showing—

- (a) the amounts of money received up to the date of the statement;
- (b) the dates when the amounts of money were received; and
- (c) the purposes for which the money or so much of it as has been expended have been applied.

(2) Where a client fails to obtain the statement referred to in subsection (1) after demanding it under subsection (1), he or she may apply to a Judge in Chambers for an order requiring the legal practitioner to deliver the statement, and the Judge may on the making of that order give other directions as he or she thinks fit.

Bills of costs to be taxed

50. (1) Subject to subsection (2), a legal practitioner may not commence a claim for the recovery from his or her client of the amount of any bill of costs for any legal business done by him or her unless the bill of costs is taxed or assessed and a taxed or assessed copy is served on the client with a demand in writing for payment fifteen days before the filing of the suit.

(2) The Court may on the application of a legal practitioner authorise him or her to commence or proceed with a suit for the recovery of any costs before the expiration of 15 days from the delivery of the copy of the bill of costs required by subsection (1) if it is satisfied that there is reasonable cause for believing that the person chargeable with the costs is about to—

- (a) leave Anguilla;
- (b) become bankrupt; or
- (c) do any other act which would tend to prevent or delay the legal practitioner from obtaining payment.

(3) Where in any proceedings before a court the amount set out in a bill of costs is sought to be recovered or is disputed and the bill of costs or part of it relates to matters in respect of which no scale of fees is prescribed, the Court shall decide whether the fees set out in respect of those matters are fair and reasonable having regard to the work done, or are excessive, and shall allow or reduce them accordingly.

(4) It shall not be necessary in the first instance for a legal practitioner in proving compliance with this section to prove the contents of the bill of costs served, and it shall be sufficient to prove that the bill—

- (a) is signed by the legal practitioner or, in the case of a partnership, by any one of the partners either in his or her own name or in the name of the partnership; or
- (b) being enclosed in or accompanied by a letter signed in the manner specified in paragraph (a) referring to the bill, was duly served.

 - (iv) skill, labour and complexity required by the legal practitioner in handling the business; and
- (b) authorise and regulate the—
 - (i) allowance of interest; and

- (ii) taking by a legal practitioner from his or her client of security for payment of remuneration to be ascertained by taxation or otherwise which may become due to him or her.

(3) Where rules made under this section are in force, the taxation of a bill of costs of a legal practitioner in respect of non-contentious business shall be regulated by those rules.

Remuneration agreements for non-contentious business

52. (1) Notwithstanding section 50, a legal practitioner and his or her client may either before, after or in the course of the transaction of any non-contentious business by the legal practitioner, enter into an agreement as to the remuneration of the legal practitioner in respect of the work to be performed.

(2) The agreement made under of subsection (1) may provide for the remuneration of the legal practitioner by gross sum, by commission, by percentage, by salary, or otherwise, and it may be made on terms that the amount of the remuneration stipulated in the agreement shall not include all or any disbursements made by the legal practitioner in respect of searches, plans, travelling, stamps, fees or other matters.

(3) An agreement made under of subsection (1) shall be in writing and signed by the person to be bound or his or her agent.

(4) An agreement made under of subsection (1) may be sued and recovered on or set aside in the same manner and on the same grounds as an agreement not relating to the remuneration of a legal practitioner, but if on any taxation of costs the agreement is relied on by the legal practitioner and objected to by the client as unfair or unreasonable, the taxing officer may inquire into the facts and certify them to the Court, and if on that certificate it appears just to the Court that the agreement should be cancelled or the amount payable under it reduced, the Court may order the agreement to be cancelled, or the amount payable under it to be reduced, and may give consequential directions as it may think fit.

PART A

CODE OF ETHICS
GENERAL GUIDELINES

In Relation to the Profession and Himself or Herself

- 1. A legal practitioner shall observe the rules of this Code, maintain his or her integrity and the honour and dignity of the legal profession and encourage other legal practitioners to act similarly and both in the practice of his or her profession and in his or her private life, shall refrain from conduct which is detrimental to the profession or which may tend to discredit it.
- 2. A legal practitioner shall in the discharge of his or her professional duties expose without fear or favour before the proper tribunals unprofessional or dishonest conduct by any other legal practitioner and shall not lightly refuse a retainer against another legal practitioner who is alleged to have wronged his or her client or committed any other act of professional misconduct.
- 3. A legal practitioner shall scrupulously preserve his or her independence in the discharge of his or her professional duties.
- 4. A legal practitioner shall protect the profession against the admission of any candidate whose moral character or education renders him or her unfit for admission.
- 5. A legal practitioner shall not endeavour by direct or indirect means to attract the clients of another legal practitioner and where a client is referred to him or her by another legal practitioner, the client remains for all other purposes the client of the referring legal practitioner and the legal practitioner to whom the client is referred shall act with due deference to the relationship between the client and the referring legal practitioner.
- 6. A legal practitioner may speak in public or write for publication on legal topics so long that it is not likely to be regarded as a result of that action as being concerned with the giving of individual advice.
- 7. (1) A legal practitioner shall endeavour to uphold standards of integrity, capability, dedication to work, fidelity, and trust.

(2) It is unprofessional for a legal practitioner to seek retainers through agents of any kind.
- 8. A legal practitioner shall defend the interest of his or her client without fear of judicial disfavour or public unpopularity and without regard to any unpleasant consequences to himself or herself or to any other person.
- 9. A legal practitioner has a right to decline employment and is not obliged to act either as adviser or advocate for every person who may wish to become his or her client.
- 10. A client is not entitled to receive nor is a legal practitioner entitled to render any service or advice—
 - (a) exhibiting disrespect for a judicial office;
 - (b) concerning the corruption of any person exercising a public or private trust; or
 - (c) concerning the deception or betrayal of the public.
- 11. Every legal practitioner shall bear in mind that the oath of office taken on his or her admission to practise is not a mere formality but is a solemn undertaking to be strictly observed on his or her part.

In Relation to the State and the Public

- 12. The primary duty of a legal practitioner when engaged as a public prosecutor is not to secure a conviction but to see that justice is done and to that end he or she shall not withhold facts tending to prove either guilt or innocence of the accused.
- 13. A legal practitioner shall endeavour by lawful means where the needs of society require to promote and encourage the modernisation, simplification and reform of legislation.
- 14. A legal practitioner shall not by his or her actions, stir up strife or litigation by seeking out defects in titles, claims for personal injury or other causes of action for the purpose of securing a retainer to prosecute a claim or pay or reward any person directly or indirectly for the purpose of procuring him or her to be retained in his or her professional capacity, and where it is in the interest of his or her client, he or she shall seek to obtain reasonable settlement of disputes.
- 15. A legal practitioner shall not except for good reason refuse his or her services in capital offences.
- 16. A legal practitioner shall not be deterred from accepting proffered employment owing to the fear or dislike of incurring the disapproval of officials, other legal practitioners or members of the public.
- 17. Where a legal practitioner consents to undertake legal aid and he or she is requested by the Council and consents to undertake the representation of a person who is unable to afford legal representation or to obtain legal aid, the legal practitioner shall not, except for compelling reasons, seek to be excused from undertaking that representation.
- 18. A legal practitioner in undertaking the defence of a person accused of crime shall use all fair and reasonable means to present every defence available at law.

In Relation to the Client

- 19. (1) A legal practitioner shall always act in the best interest of his or her client, represent him or her honestly, competently and zealously and endeavour by all fair and honourable means to obtain for him or her the benefit of any and every remedy and defence which is authorised by law, always bearing in mind that his or her duties and responsibilities should be carried out within and not without the boundaries of the law.
- (2) The first concern of a legal practitioner should always be the interest of his or her client and the exigencies of the administration of justice which should rank before his or her right to compensation for his or her services.
- 20. (1) A legal practitioner should, before advising on the cause of a client, obtain a sound knowledge of the matter and give a candid opinion of its merits or demerits and the probable results of pending or contemplated litigation.
- (2) A legal practitioner should be reluctant in proffering bold and confident assurances to his or her client especially where his or her employment may depend on these assurances in light of the fact that the law is not always on the side of his or her client and that the law allows for the audi alteram partem rule to be followed.
- (3) Where a dispute allows for settlement without litigation, a legal practitioner should advise his or her client to avoid or settle the dispute.
- 21. (1) A legal practitioner shall at the time of agreeing on a retainer disclose to his or her client all the circumstances of his or her relations to the parties and his or her interest in or connection with the dispute which may influence the client in his or her selection of a legal practitioner.
- (2) A legal practitioner shall scrupulously guard and never divulge the secrets and confidence of his or her client except with his or her client's consent.

22. A legal practitioner shall treat adverse witnesses, litigants and other legal practitioners with fairness and courtesy, refraining from offensive personal references and should refrain in conducting his or her professional duties from being influenced by his or her client's personal feelings and prejudices.

23. A legal practitioner has the right to undertake the defence of a person accused of crime regardless of his or her own personal opinion as to the guilt of the accused and having undertaken to conduct the defence, he is bound by all fair and honourable means to present every defence that the law of the land permits so that no person may be unjustly deprived of life or liberty.

24. (1) A legal practitioner may represent multiple clients only if he or she can adequately represent the interests of each and if each consents to his or her representation after full disclosure of the possible effects of multiple representations.

(2) A legal practitioner shall, in all situations where a possible conflict of interest arises, resolve the conflict by leaning against multiple representations.

25. (1) A legal practitioner shall deal with the business of his or her client with all due expedition and shall whenever reasonably so required by the client, provide him or her with full information as to the progress of the business.

(2) It is improper for a legal practitioner to accept a case unless he or she can handle it without undue delay.

26. Where a legal practitioner determines that the interest of his or her client requires it, he or she may with the specific or general consent of the client refer his or her business or part of it to another legal practitioner whether or not a member of his or her own firm of legal practitioners.

27. (1) A Queen's Counsel or Senior Counsel may accept instructions, appear or do any work without a junior, except where he or she would otherwise be unable properly to carry out his or her instructions or conduct his or her case if he or she were to do so.

(2) Where more than one legal practitioner appears as advocate for the same party in the same proceedings, the decision of who shall lead the conduct of the case shall, subject to the instructions of the client, be settled by the legal practitioners representing that party before they appear in court and shall not be altered during the course of the proceedings and the leader shall have all authority over the conduct of the case.

(3) A legal practitioner, including a Queen's Counsel, who appears with the leader, is entitled to an appropriate negotiated fee for his or her conduct of the case.

28. (1) A legal practitioner is entitled to reasonable compensation for his or her services but should avoid charges which either overestimate or undervalue the service rendered.

(2) A legal practitioner shall not charge in excess of the value of the service rendered because of the ability of a client to pay, however, he or she may consider the indigence of a client as a factor in charging below the value of the service rendered, or not charging at all.

(3) A legal practitioner should avoid controversies with clients regarding compensation for his or her services as far as is compatible with self-respect and his or her right to receive compensation for his or her services.

29. The right of a legal practitioner to ask for a retainer or to demand payment of out-of-pocket expenses and commitments and to withdraw his or her services for non-payment of these fees shall not be exercised where the client may be unable to find other timely assistance to prevent irreparable damage being done to his or her case.

30. Where a legal practitioner engages a foreign colleague to advise on a case or to co-operate in handling it, he or she is responsible for the payment of the charges involved except if there is an express agreement to the contrary, but where a legal practitioner directs a client to a foreign colleague he or she is not responsible for the payment of the charges, nor is he or she entitled to a share of the fee of his or her foreign colleague except where there is an express agreement to the contrary.

31. Subject to paragraph 12 of Part B, a legal practitioner may at any time withdraw from employment—

- (a) where the client fails, refuses or neglects to carry out an agreement with or his or her obligation to the legal practitioner as regards the expenses or fees payable by the client;
- (b) where his or her inability to work with colleagues indicates that the best interest of the client is likely to be served by his or her withdrawal;
- (c) where his or her client freely assents to the termination of his or her employment;
- (d) where by reason of his or her mental or physical condition or other good and compelling reason it is difficult for him or her to carry out his or her employment effectively; or
- (e) in cases of conflict as contemplated in paragraph 25 of this Part or paragraph 8 of Part B.

32. (1) A legal practitioner may not appear as a witness for his or her own client except in merely formal matters or where the appearance is essential to the ends of justice.

(2) If a legal practitioner is a necessary witness for his or her client with respect to matters other than those that are merely formal, he or she shall entrust the conduct of the case to another legal practitioner of his or her client's choice.

In relation to the Courts and the Administration of Justice

33. (1) A legal practitioner shall maintain a respectful attitude towards the Court and shall not engage in undignified or discourteous conduct which is degrading to the Court.

(2) A legal practitioner shall encourage respect for the Courts and the Judges.

(3) A legal practitioner shall not support unjust criticisms of Judges and Magistrates.

(4) Where there is ground for complaint against a Judge or Magistrate a legal practitioner may make representation to the proper authorities and where this is done, the legal practitioner shall be protected.

34. A legal practitioner shall endeavour always to maintain his or her status as an advocate and shall not either in argument to the court or in address to the jury assert his or her personal belief in his or her client's innocence or in the justice of his or her cause or his or her personal knowledge as to any of the facts involved in the matter under investigation.

35. A legal practitioner shall never seek privately to influence directly or indirectly the Judges of the Court in his or her favour or in the favour of his or her client, nor shall he or she attempt to influence juries by fawning, flattery or pretended solicitude for their personal comfort.

36. A legal practitioner shall be punctual in attendance before the Courts and concise and direct in the trial and disposition of causes.

39. (1) A legal practitioner shall reply promptly to letters from other legal practitioners making inquiries on behalf of their clients.

41. (1) A legal practitioner shall in the course of his or her professional duties report improper or unprofessional conduct by a colleague to himself or herself or his or her client to the Council, except where the information relating to the improper or unprofessional conduct is received in professional confidence in which case he or she shall respect the duty of silence imposed in those circumstances.

(2) A legal practitioner shall in the course of his or her professional duties expose without fear a legal practitioner who is alleged to have wronged a client and shall not lightly refuse a retainer against another legal practitioner if called upon to do so.

42. Where a legal practitioner has been sent money, documents or other things by a colleague in pursuance of a legal matter on condition that the receiving party will use them for a particular purpose, he or she must comply with that request or forthwith return the money, document or other things.

(2) A legal practitioner should avoid all sharp practices and should refrain from taking any paltry advantage when his or her opponent has made or overlooked some technical error or matter, bearing in mind that no client has a right to demand that a legal practitioner representing him or her shall be illiberal or shall do anything repugnant to his or her own sense of honour and propriety.

45. A legal practitioner shall not accept instructions to act in court proceedings in which to his or her knowledge a client has previously been represented by another legal practitioner, unless he or she first notified the other legal practitioner of the change, and makes reasonable efforts to ensure that the other legal practitioner has been paid for his or her services, however he or she shall be deemed to have notified the other legal practitioner if he or she has made reasonable efforts to notify him or her of the change.

46. A legal practitioner shall not accept instructions to act in proceedings other than Court proceedings in which to his or her knowledge, another legal practitioner has previously represented the client unless he or she makes reasonable efforts to ascertain that the retainer of that legal practitioner has been determined by the client or that the client wishes both legal practitioners to represent him or her.

Application and affidavits

2. (1) A complaint to the Tribunal to require a legal practitioner to answer allegations contained in an Affidavit shall be in writing under the hand of the complainant and shall be in Form 1 of the Appendix and shall be sent to the Chairman of the Disciplinary Tribunal together with an Affidavit by the applicant in Form 2 of the Appendix stating the facts on which he or she relies in support of his or her complaint.

(2) A complaint referred to in subsection (1) and any other document or communications pertaining to such complaint shall be forwarded forthwith to the Secretary by the Chairman of the Disciplinary Tribunal.

No case to answer

3. The Tribunal, before fixing a date for the hearing of a matter, may require the complainant to supply further information and documents relating to all allegations as it deems fit, and in any case where in the opinion of the Tribunal no prima facie case is shown, the Tribunal may, without requiring the legal practitioner to answer the allegations, dismiss the complaint and notify the complainant and the legal practitioner of the dismissal.

Notice of hearing

4. In any case in which, in the opinion of the Tribunal, a prima facie case is shown, the Tribunal shall fix a date for hearing and the Secretary shall serve notice of the date on the complainant and the legal practitioner together with a copy of the complaint and affidavit. The notice to the complainant shall be in Form 3 and the notice to the legal practitioner shall be in Form 4 as set out in the Appendix and shall require the complainant and the legal practitioner respectively to furnish to the Tribunal Secretary and to each other a list of all documents on which they respectively propose to rely. Affidavit evidence

8. The Tribunal may, either as to the whole case or as to any particular fact, proceed and act upon evidence given by affidavit, but a party to the proceedings may require a deponent to an affidavit to be summoned to appear before the Tribunal unless the Tribunal is satisfied that the affidavit is purely formal and that the requirement of the appearance of the deponent is made frivolously.

Summons

9. A summons issued by the Tribunal under section 42 may be in Form 5 as set out in the Appendix with such variation as the case may require.

Privacy of hearings

10. The Tribunal shall hear all complaints in camera but shall pronounce its findings in public.
