INSTRUCTIONS FOR FILLING IN B.O.P. FORM 06

The reporting period should be the calendar year. In cases where the financial year is different from the calendar year, data should be adjusted to the appropriate calendar year.

Definition of residents and non-residents

- (a) Residents include all enterprises operating in this economy, regardless of whether they are owned by nationals or foreigners. Persons who normally (for one year or more) live and work in this country are also residents, regardless of their citizenship.

- (b) A non-resident is any individual, enterprise, or other organisation ordinarily living or operating in a country other than this country. Transportation companies operating from another country are examples of non-residents. Persons who live and work in the country for less than one year are considered non-residents.

Section 2 records data on cash grants, grants in kind (e.g. machinery, equipment) and technical assistance that is grants in the form of personnel received during the current year. Receipt of technical assistance is a major balance of payments transaction in the OECS countries, yet it is difficult to estimate the value of this inflow in most cases. If the value of technical assistance and grants in kind is not available, please put a note indicating the number of personnel received as well as the type of equipment or machinery.

Section 3 captures any investment income or other receipts from overseas.
