

Final Census Counts Estimate Anguilla's Residential Population at 11,560

The final population counts for Anguilla puts the residential population on Wednesday May 9th, 2001, that is those people who are normally resident in Anguilla for at least 6 months of the year, termed the de jure population count, at 11,560. Of this population 11,429 were included in the census and 131 people either refused or were not at home when census enumerator's visited to collect their information. The last census was carried out during the week of February 24 – 28, 1992. The de jure population count from this census was 9,290. The de jure population increased over the 9 year period, 1992 to 2001 by 24% or an average annual rate of about 2.5% per year. The provisional count released in July estimated the population to be 11,300.

The total number of occupied households on census day was 3,788. This number is made up of 3,731 households included in the census database and 57 that were missing or refused. The provisional estimate was 3,750. A household is defined as a group of people who usually sleep and share a daily meal together. The average size of a household in Anguilla is 3 people.

The tabulation of census data will take about 2 months and will be published on the Anguilla Government web site at www.gov.ai by topic. These topics include households, demography and culture, disabilities and health, education, training and the labour force, and marital status and fertility. In addition there will be some geographic profiles of selected information. The geographic regions for which data will be published is shown in the table below. The regions are shown on the attached map.
