(2) Pursuant to subsection (1), probation officer or a person shall complete the report as soon as possible, but no later than 6 weeks following the date upon which such report was requested.

(3) The Court may dispense with a pre-sentence report where a child is convicted of an offence referred to in Schedule 1, or where requiring such a report would cause undue delay in the conclusion of the case, save however that the Court shall not impose a sentence with a residential requirement unless a pre-sentence report has been first obtained.

(4) For the purposes of subsection (3), “a sentence with a residential requirement” includes a sentence where the residential requirement is suspended.

Summons to inquire of fit person

62. (1) Where a child has been convicted of any offence and the Court is satisfied that it is in the best interests and welfare of the child to make an order committing him to the care of a fit person and ascertains on inquiry that such a person is available and willing to undertake the care of the child, the court shall have power to summon such fit person before it for the purpose of examining him as to his fitness for being so appointed.

(5) Where a child who has been sentenced in accordance with an order arising from a family group conference fails to comply with that order, the probation officer shall notify the Court of the failure as soon as possible and the Court shall issue a warrant of apprehension for the child, and where the child appears before the Court pursuant to such warrant, the Court shall impose an appropriate sentence on the child.

EXPLANATORY NOTES
(The explanatory notes do not form part of the Bill)

The Child Justice Act in broad terms, is intended to establish a criminal justice system for children who are in conflict with the law and are accused of committing offences. It gives effect to Anguilla's international obligations under the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child.

The most significant features of the Act are the following:

- (i) It places great emphasis on the assessment of children in conflict with the law soon after they are accused of committing an offence in order to ensure that their individual needs and circumstances are taken into account.
- (ii) It provides for special processes or procedures for securing the attendance of children at court, for their release from detention, as well as for their placement if they are required to remain in custody. In this regard, arrest is a measure of last resort and other methods of securing their attendance in court are emphasised. If they are required to be detained before their appearance in court or pending their trial, they are to be detained in a police cell or a prison only as a measure of last resort.
- (iii) It provides for the adjudication of matters involving children which are not diverted in specially constituted child justice courts.
- (iv) It provides for a wide range of new sentencing options specifically suited to the needs of children with an emphasis on restorative justice where the victim / members of society play an important role.
- (v) It provides for the expungement of criminal records of children who have been convicted of certain less serious offences in certain circumstances.

The Objects of Act are to establish a criminal justice process for children accused of committing offences based on restorative justice and which aims at protecting the rights of children as provided for in international conventions; to provide for the minimum age of criminal capacity of such children; to institute diversion of cases away from formal court procedures; to establish assessment of children and an initial inquiry as compulsory procedures; to extend the sentencing options available in respect of children; to consolidate the laws on the administration of justice for children

Guiding principles

In the application of this Act, the following guiding principles must be taken into account:

- (a) all consequences arising from the commission of an offence by a child should be proportionate to the circumstances of the child, the nature of the offence and the interests of society.
- (b) a child must not be treated more severely than an adult would have been treated in the same circumstances.
